HIGHT-SWEETIN JURY REACH VERDICT; "GUILTY"

Last Officer Of His Regiment Recalls War

Veteran Editor Tells of "Beginning of End" For Confederacy.

SAW LINCOLN

Is Glad He Lived To Get Home and To Make Friends With Foes.

Just sixty years ago, fire from the field artillery of the Union forces was raking Confederate baggage trains as they crawled dispiritedly out of Nashville and blasting the hopes of the Boys in Gray, who had fought doggedly and courageously to hold the capital of the Volunteer state against the terrific onslaughts of a two days' battle.

It was the beginning of the end. The power of the Confederacy was broken in West Tennessee and the Union forces were in control of the state. Henceforth the Confederacy was but a name and a memory in Tennessee.

Capt. William Rule, editor of The Journal, whose brigade took part in the battle of Nashville, sat in his office in Nashville, and recalled some of the incidents of that stirring time in Tennessee.

"My brigade had been ordered down the Tennessee to see about the burning of some steamboats by the Confederates," Captain Rule said. Then we got orders that the Confederates were at Franklin and to go there. Later advices were that they were at Columbia, and we started for that town, but we then got orders to proceed to Nashville.

"When we got to Nashville," he continued, "we came up in the rear of Hood's army, so we had to circle all the way around Hood and get with Gen. Thomas, who was commanding the Union forces. We were what you might call a 'lost brigade.' But we got in several days before the battle. There had been a snow and Gen. Thomas was always a very careful man and did not want to make an attack until conditions were favorable.

Severe Fighting

"The first day of the battle there was severe fighting. The second day it was almost all artillery firing on the baggage trains of the Confederates. There were only about three infantry charges, I think, on the second day. The battle of Nashville marked the turning of the tide in Tennessee. There wasn't much left of the Confederate army in the west after the battle.

"After the battle of Nashville," Captain Rule said, "we went to Columbia and from there to Waynesville, Tenn. Then we went up the Ohio river in a fleet of boats to Cincinnati, from there to Washington and Alexandria, Va. It was at Alexandria that I saw Abraham Lincoln for the first and only time. We were forzen up there for a month.

"Leaving Alexandria, we took boat down the Chesapeake bay," he continued. "We landed at the mouth of Cape Fear river, marched east to Wilmington, N. C., then up to Goldsboro, where we were joined by Gen. Sherman's forces on the return from the 'March to the Sea.' It was there that the enlistment of my brigade expired, and we were due for a trip the 'long way round' to get home.

"We took passage, with Sherman's troops, to New York. At Norfolk we learned of the evacuation of Richmond. I remember that the captain of the vessel told us of some fine whisky he had in the hold of the vessel and asked the officers if he might treat the men in celebration of the event. We had to refuse, for if the men had reached the whisky they would have been out of discipline and taken possessoin of the boats. It was at New York that we learned of the surrender of Lee which meant the end of the war.

Heard Report Lincoln's Death

"In Cleveland word reached us that Lincoln had been assassinated. When we reached the city the day before, flags were flying and the town was decorated in bunting, bands were playing and the town was in the midst of celebrating the great victory. The next day, the flags had been the day before, the bands were hushed and the town was sunk in mourning for the leader. That was on April 27, 1865.

"It is seldom that I talk of these things," Captain Rule concluded, but I was just thinking about it today. I am the only commissioned officer of my regiment left. They have all passed away. I am thankful that I could come home and make friends with all my Confederate friends and that we have remained friends ever since."

DIVORCE DOES NOT END LOVE. STATES JUDGE

WIFE WHO AWAITS HER HUSBAND UNTIL DINNER IS COLD DESERVES PITY.

Divorces Given

Woman, Who Once Has Loved a Man Never Ceases To Love Even Though She May Testify Most Bitterly Against Him.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 24.—(AP).—Divorce does not necessarily mean that husband and wife have ceased to love each other; in fact the contrary often is true, in the opinion of Judge Thomas F. Graham, known locally as the great reconciler.

Judge Graham has been hearing divorce cases for 24 years. "It has been my experience," he said recently, "that love is not always dead when a woman sues for divorce. I believe that 99 percent of the women who get divorces leave the court room with heavy hearts. They love the men they have just divorced. I believe that when a woman once loves a man, she never ceases to love, even though she may testify most bitterly against her husband.

"A man does not have the power of expression of love that a woman has. Yet that love is there and it endures. When a father deserts his children, he is arrested. Almost as many mothers desert their children, yet we seldom hear of their arrest for abandonment. They should be."

Gambling in itself is not cause for divorce, Judge Graham holds. "There are few homes indeed," he pointed out, "where husband or wife doesn't play poker, mah, jongg, bridge or some other game of cards for money or prizes. But when the wife squanders her husband's income on bridge or mah jongg, or the husband spends all his time and money at the gaming table and stays out until all hours of the night, gambling becomes ground for divorce in this state on the charge of cureltv."

The judge expressed pity for the wife "who stays at home nights waiting for her husband to come home for dinner and he does not come until the dinner is cold; spoiled, in the opinion of the wife. And there never was a wife who did not take pride in the dinners she prepared for her husband. The tardy husband inflicts a form of cruelty on his wife that causes her more suffering than the lash of a whip. She has a good ground for divorce.

"So has the wife whose mental suffering is caused by the man's staying out until the early morning hours. Every day we read in the newspapers of men slugged and robbed, sometimes killed, while returning home at night. Imagine the state of mind of the bride who waits hour after hour for her husband to come home and he does not appear. Night after night many a wife endures that sort of thing. Finally she comes into the divorce court to get freedom from the man she really loves better than any one in the world."

FALL TRAFFIC GREATEST IN RAIL HISTORY

OCTOBER RAIL TRAFFIC SURPASSES THAT OF ANY ONE MONTH IN HISTORY.

East Decreases

Big Increase South and West; Third Week of October Shows More Cars Loaded Than Any Other Week In History.

Measured in net ton miles, the total was 43,109,713,000 net ton miles, exceeding by 424,835,000 net ton miles, or 1 per cent, that for August, 1920, which had marked the previous high record for any one month.

Compared with October last year, it was an increase of 900,072,000 net ton miles or 2.1 per cent.

This record freight movement was handled by the railroads without transportation difficulty. While loadings of revenue freight in October averaged more than 1,000,000 cars weekly, reaching a peak the week of October 25 when it amounted to 1,112,345 cars, the greatest number loaded during any one week in history, the railroads moved this enormous freight without a car shortage.

In fact, during the month there was a daily average of nearly 100,000 surplus freight cars in good repair which were not needed to meet transportation demands. At the same time, the railroads had approximately 5,000 serviceable locomotives in storage, it not being necessary to place them in service as the locomotives on hand were able to handle the volume of business.

In the Eastern District there was a decrease under October, 1923, of 1.2 per cent in the amount of freight traffic handled, computed on the basis of net ton miles, but in the Southern District there was an increase of 2.5 per cent and in the Western District an increase of 6.3 per cent.

For the first ten months in 1924, the volume of freight moved amounted to $356,389,671,000 net ton miles, a decrease of 7.7% under the corresponding period last year, decreases being shown in all Districts.

In the Eastern District the decrease amounted to 11.7 per cent in the Southern District, 6.1 per cent and the Western, 2.3 per cent.

Does He Live In Middlesboro?

My father says the paper that he reads ain't put up right.
He finds a lot of fault, he does, perusing it at night,
He says there ain't a single thing in it worth while to read.
And that it doesn't print the kind of stuff that people need.
He tosses it aside and says it's strictly "on the bum"
But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.
He reads about the weddin' and he snorts like all get out,
He reads the social doin's with a most derisive shout;
He says they make the papers for the wimmin folks alone.
He'll read about the parties and he'll fume, fret and groan.
He says of information it don't contain a crum—
But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn't come.
He always first to grab it, he reads it plumb clear thru.
He doesn't miss an item or a want ad—that is true.
He says: They don't know what we want, them darn newspaper guys
I'm going to take a day some time and go and put them wise.
Sometimes it seems as though they must be deaf and dumb"—
But you ought to hear him holler when the paper doesn' come!

Eight Dead In Air Liner Fire Tragedy

Tank Explodes and Machine Backs Then Falls Like a Stone

CROYDON, England, Dec. 24, (AP) – A Christmas tide tragedy occurred at the airdome here today when a big airways express liner, containing seven passengers, crashed to earth soon after taking off. The passengers who were on their way to Paris for Christmas were hardly aware that they were in the air when the big ship was seen to suddenly bank and going into a nose dive in a gust of wind, burst into flames. It is said the accident was caused by the bursting of the gasoline tank. All of the passengers and the pilot were burned to death and the machine entirely destroyed. The passenger list consisted of two women and five men. Eye witnesses state that the plane suddenly seemed to back, cleared by mere accident a nearby house, before it staggered in the air for a moment then the tail shot up and the machine fell like a stone. The victims it is believed died instantly and before they know what was happening.

Report Of Pope's Illness Is Error

ROME, Dec. 24 (AP)—In response to queries prompted by a report that he was ill with influenza, it was stated this forenoon that Pope Pius was perfectly well.

The Pope said mass this morning and received visiting prelates in audience. He, also received the cardinals, who presented Christmas wishes.

The Pope appeared in perfect health when the cardinals paid him their visit. The group included all the members of the Sacred College who live in Rome and also Cardinal Mercier, Belgian primate, who was warmly greeted by his colleagues.

Cardinal Vannutelli, dean of the college, delivered a short address in which he said the Christmas felicitations of the cardinals were even warmer than usual, owing to the general rejoicing over the jubilee year.

NO PAPER TOMORROW

On account of tomorrow being Christmas there will be no issue of the News.

The Stars Are Shining

The stars are shining bright and clear,
The hills are white with snow,
Our Christmas eve has come again,
Our hearts with Joy o'erflow:

The Christmas carols sweet and glad,
Are sounding on the air;
And Christmas wreaths, in glisthing show,
Make bright the house of prayer.

We know the tidings which are brought
Of Christ our Saviour's birth,
The song of "Glory be to God;"
Goodwill and peace on earth."

And so, the Christmas carol sung
By Angels long ago,
Is sweeter than all other songs
Which Christians sing below.

SCIENTISTS TO MEET MONDAY IN WASHINGTON

LARGEST ASSEMBLAGE OF LEARNED MEN EVER GATHERED IN AMERICA TO MEET AT CAPITAL.

$1,000 Prize Offered

Association Organized in 1848; Membership Over 14,000; Women Will Take Large Part In Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 24 (AP)—The largest representative assemblage of scientists ever gathered in America is expected in Washington when the American Association for the Advancement of Science convenes for its 79th meeting, on December 29. Forty-six separate learned societies will take part in the general convocation which will continue until January 3. Preparations are being made for an attendance of more than 3,000.

Every branch of science will be represented by leading workers, many of whom will present results of their more important investigations during the last year. More than a thousand papers will be read, covering all science from astronomy to zoology.

President Coolidge may deliver an address of welcome the opening meeting at which the president of the Association, Dr. J. McKeen Cattell, formerly professor of psychology at Columbia University, will preside. The retiring president, Dr Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution will speak on "Science and Service" at that meeting which will be followed by a general reception to the visitors by resident scientists.

During the sessions the British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, will speak before the American Political Association on "British Policy and the Balance of Power." Other addresses of general interest will be given every day of the session. Daylight hours will be devoted chiefly to small section meetings while evening meetings will be of a larger and more popular character.

One of the events of the week will be the awarding of the second American Association Prize of $1,000 to the author of one of the more noteworthy papers presented during the week. This prize is given by an anonymous donor and was awarded for the first time at the Cincinnati meeting of the Association last year to Dr. L. E. Dickson of the University of Chicago. While it is expressly stated that this award is not competitive in the usual sense, there is keen interest shown in it by possible winners many of whom are said to be withholding until the last moment the titles of the papers which they intend to deliver.

Defenders of evolution are looking forward with anticipation to the address of Dr. E. L. Rice, professor of zoology at Ohio Wesleyan University, and retiring vice-president of the zoological section of the association, who will speak on "Darwin and Bryan; a Study in Method." This will be delivered before the American Society of Zoologists.

The branches of science having to do with living things will have an especially important program and the more significant papers are looked for from that quarter. There will be general discussions on such subjects as "Sex and Sex Determination," "Growth," and "The Physiological Effects of Light," in which leaders of science will have prominent parts.

Exhibits of scientific apparatus will be a feature of the meeting and new methods of research will be demonstrated; of these exhibits one of the most important will be that of biological apparatus for experiments on living animals which will be shown at the United States Hygienic Laboratory, where demonstrations of some of the latest methods of research will be given.

Women will take a large part in the meeting and will read a number of important papers. Special arrangements are being made for their entertainment by the American Association of University Women and the College Woman's Club.

This will be the fifth time the American Association for the Advancement of Science has met in Washington since its organization in 1848. The last was in 1911 and previous meetings were held in 1902, 1891 and 1854. The membership of the Association is now more than 14,000 and the lure of the national capital is expected to draw nearly one-fourth of that number here. The meeting is also one of the more important, question sessions at which especially important programs are arranged.

'GUILTY' SAYS JURY IN HIGHT SWEETIN TRIAL

JURY OUT ELEVEN HOURS—DECISION SAID TO BE RESULT OF A COMPROMISE.

New Trial Asked

Two Jurors Said To Have Favored Death Penalty For Hight, But Disagreed on Punishment for Mrs. Sweetin.

MOUNT VERNON, Ill, Dec. 24. (AP)—The jury trying Lawrence Hight, and Mrs. Elsie Sweetin, for the poisoning and murder of her husband, Wilford Sweetin, today returned a verdict of guilty.

Hight was given life imprisonment, but Mrs. Sweetin was let off with a lesser sentence of thirty-five years in the penitentiary.

The jury deliberated about eleven hours, the judge having ordered an extra session of court yesterday that the case might get to the jury last night.

The jury carefully considered all points of the testimony it is stated, working on the case continuously during the night and this morning, except for a short time for breakfast. After the verdict was given to the court one of the jurors stated that the entire body had been unanimous for finding both defendants guilty, from the first ballot, but there was a wide difference of opinion regarding the punishment of Mrs. Sweetin. The decision in her case is said to have been reached by a compromise. Two jurors are said to have favored the death penalty for Hight, while none voted to hang Mrs. Sweetin.

Both defendants received the verdict in silence. That both will fight today's verdict is shown by the fact that the attorneys immediately gave notice that a new trial will be asked for.

BIG BASKET BALL CONTEST NOW ON

Nine Teams of Girls and Same Number of Boys From Agricultural Classes to Enter

MAYSVILLE, Ky., Dec. 24.—A junior agricultural club basketball tournament is attracting much attention in Mason county. Nine teams of boys and a like number of teams of girls, representing junior clubs organized by County Agent R. M. Greene at the nine consolidated schools in the county, are entered in the contest. The champion girls' team will receive a silver cup from the Bank of Maysville, and the champion boy's team a cup from the George Dodson Grocery Co., of Maysville.

Approximately 300 boys and girls have joined junior agricultural clubs, according to Mr. Greene. A series of contests or events has been planned for next year, and each club will be scored according to its interest and achievements. Merchants and businessmen in the county have contributed to the prize list.

Following the basketball tournament there will be a demonstration contest, in which teams from different schools will compete in demonstrating farm and home practices. Then will follow a live stock judging contest, county club camps, junior week at the College of Agriculture in Lexington, exhibit at community and county fairs, and an achievement day to end the year's activities.

Mason county is reputed to have one of the best consolidated school systems in Kentucky, there being but four one-room schoolhouses left in the county. County Agent Greene, assisted by Boards of Education, school teachers, clubs and other organizations, and parents, is planning to develop one of the best county junior agricultural club programs in the state.

HOLD YOUR TONGUE IN KENTUCKY

The Central City Argus waxes indignant at the thought of what it calls the anti-gossiping law. How the law worked in Owensboro is explained in the following editorial from the Argus:

"Kentucky can always be depended upon to receive its just portion of publicity, whether it be for gun-carrying, bootlegging, or actions of its lawmaking body that holds biennial circus in Frankfort.

"In 1922 the Kentucky legislature was given publicity that would have warmed the heart of any sales manager or movie vampire, when the celebrated "monkey bill" was introduced and defeated by one vote.

"At that time Kentucky was ridiculed from all sides by writers who laughed at the attempt of a state, already forty-sixth in education, to still further handicap its educational facilities by censoring books on geology, astronomy, physiology and kindred sciences.

"At present the newspaper-reading world is being given another treat at Kentucky's expense, and this time the anti-gossiping law is responsible.

"In Owensboro, a woman was arrested for alleged slanderous remarks concerning the Owensboro police force. She was tried in police court and fined $10 and costs, the lowest fine provided by the new law.

"Mrs. Basham, the woman charged with the offense, is said to have remarked while waiting for a train in the Owensboro union station: 'The police and bootleggers are in together here, and divide the money.' For that statement she was arrested and fined $10.

"A modern example of lese majesty!

"Policemen are public officers. They are appointed to guard the property of all residents and to preserve peace and order. But policemen are not above reproach. They can not be considered as little tin gods dressed in blue uniforms and placed on a pedestal. They have their temptations, and sometimes they succumb to them.

"In the Owensboro case, a woman was overheard making a comment concerning the police force. For that comment she paid a fine. She may have been in error, she may have been right. We do not know. But we think that the law is in violation of a constitutional provision guaranteeing freedom of speech and a dangerous weapon that can be wielded with deadly force.

"As such, it is unworthy of a place on the statute books of Kentucky.

"Gossiping is by no means a praiseworthy occupation. Long tongues are not to be commended but the Kentucky law goes just a little too far."—Reprint from Lexington Herald.

Did You Ever Stop to Think

By E. R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

THAT there is nothing that so appeals to the buying public as good advertising.

THAT the greatest opportunity for expanding a business is through the printed page.

THAT it teaches the buyer to do business with the firm that advertises.

THAT many successful businesses use a friendly style in their advertising, sort of friendly, chatty way of telling the public about their business.

THAT the businesses that are well advertised are known as leaders in their line of business.

THAT they keep the public thinking and talking about their business.

THAT is why their goods are always growing in popularity.

THERE IS NO BETTER INDICATION OF THE PUBLIC REGARD FOR ADVERTISED GOODS THAN THE IMPROVED REPUTATION THAT MANUFACTURERS OF QUALITY, ADVERTISE GOODS ARE NOW GETTING.

CHRISTMAS

We thank Thee Lord, for the Christmas Star,
That brought the wise men from afar.
To find the Holy Babe that lay
In the manger-bed of fragrant hay.

We thank Thee Lord, for the joyful song,
The shepherds heard from the angel throng,
As when by the night they watched their sheep,
While Bethlehem town lay fast asleep.

The Christ-child came for you and me,
That we from sin might be made free.
That "Peace on Earth" should be our creed,
And that we help another's need.

Let all be glad this Christmas Day,
For the Holy Babe in the manger lay,
For the tender Shepherd of us, His sheep
From sin and wrong He came to keep.

The Christmas Star! The Christmas Song!
Will guide us all life's way along,
And when on earth our course is run,
May we each one hear a glad "Well Done."

TO YOU

I won't send you cigars—you don't need 'em;
Your smoke too darn much anyhow!
Or a flock of Fox Furs—you might speed 'em
And maybe kill somebody's cow;
If I sent you a gem—you might flash it
And trial to-grand would put out your light;
If I wrote you a check—you might cash it
And I'd sleep in Jail Christmas night;
But a good wish will always hold steady
And here are a million or two,
That this is the best Christmas season
Old man, that you just ever knew.

PARROT WAS 30 YEARS OLD

Polly, the aged parrot belonging to Miss Mary Carpenter, died last Friday night. Many years ago the bird was presented to Dr. Hawkins Brown by Dr. Bertie Carpenter and afforded that good man no small amount of amusement in his declining years. Polly was over 30 years of age and was noted for her rare intelligence and quaint tricks, which always won for her a place in the hearts of her little friends in particular.—Stanford Interior Journal.

CHRISTMAS CANDY

Maple Nut Caramels

Two and one-half cups brown sugar, 1-8 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1-2 cup butter, ¾ cup red label corn syrup, 1 cup milk, ½ cup cream, 1 cup broken nut meats, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Melt one cup of sugar over a low fire. Stir in cream of tartar and stir continuously while melting. Stir in remaining sugar, butter, corn syrup and milk. Cook, stirring almost constantly until the syrup forms a hard ball when tried in cold water. The drop of syrup in the water must be hard and firm between the fingers. Add cream and cook until the syrup cracks when tried in cold water. Stir constantly after adding cream and keep the fire low. Remove from the fire, stir in nuts and pour into a well-buttered dripping pan. Let stand several hours in a cold place. Cut into squares and wrap in oiled paper.

Growth Of South Given Publicity

"The South's Development," a comprehensive publication by the Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore, showing the tremendous progress of the South along all lines in the past fifty years, is just off the press.

In addition to great numbers of articles by nationally prominent authorities on the past, present, and future of the South as a whole, each Southern state has a special section of the book.

Governor Trinkle contributed "Virginia's Resources" to the Virginia section, and the late Dr. Thomas L. Watson, of the University of Virginia, is the author of "The Mineral Resources of Virginia." Statistics on the growth of the state in every field since 1880 also are given.

Articles on the South in general have been contributed to "The South's Development" by cabinet members, captains of industry from many sections of the country, and numerous nationally-known leaders in various lines.

Editorials and special articles extend over about 350 double-column pages. The book is profusely illustrated several Colonial homes in Virginia being among the illustrations.

First M. E. Church Have Christmas Tree

A Christmas tree and program was given at the First M. E Church last night. Each pupil enrolled in the Sunday School as well as a number of visiting children, was given a nice treat. The program was under the direction of Mrs. E. R. Brown, and consisted of monologues, drills, tableaus and recitations.

The old and beautiful Christmas carol "Silent Night" was rendered by a quintet composed of Ida Mae and Hazel Smith, Mr. and Mrs. E. R Brown and the Rev. Archer. A violin solo by Hazel Day, was beautifully rendered and well received

Entertains Sunday School Class

The Sunday School class of Mrs W. R. Estep was entertained by her at her home on Petersborough Ave. on Monday evening. Other guests were also present. The Christmas idea was carried out in the decorations and refreshments In the center of the living room was placed a large Christmas tree, beautifully decorated.

After the guests arrived, copies of carols were given to all with a request by the hostess, to sing with the Christmas spirit. Just as the last song was sung, which indicated Santa was near; (was heard outside) the lights were dimmed and the hostess opened the door and Santa walked in, covered with snow, tired and weary with a heavy load on his back. He presented to all Christmas gifts and then bade each and every one a happy Christmas and a prosperous New Year and at last, a good night.

After Santa's departure a most interesting contest was enjoyed. Peanuts, crepe paper, colored pencils, pins and toothpicks were given to each guest with the request to make and dress a Santa Claus as near like the original one, who had just departed, as possible.

The winners were as follows:
1st Ethel Nagel.
2nd Mrs. John Croley.
3rd—Between Rev. Sam P Martin and Rev. John Croley

The guests numbered forty. Rev. and Mrs. John Croley of Cumberland Gap and their son, Prof. Irvin Croley of Wakeforest, N. C. were the out of town guests
